TORONTO, Nov. 23.—The signature "T. Small" on a document purporting to be a confession of Mrs. Theresa Small to complicity in her husband's murder is a forgery, it was declared yesterday by O. B. Staunton, handwriting expert. First expert witness to be called by T. N. Phelan, K.C., counsel for executors of the will of Mrs. Theresa Small.

WITNESS REBUKED
Plaintiffs case concluded with evidence of Patrick Sullivan, a former Mounted Policeman, investigator for the Small sisters, who was told by Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey that for 18 years he had engaged in "a vindictive and relentless pursuit of Mrs. Theresa Small, a pursuit not stopped by her death."

Michael Prior Dies
Here At Age Of 60

Michael Prior, 60, 10319 93 street, employee of the city for many years, died in a city hospital Wednesday morning. He leaves his wife, one daughter, Mrs. W. Gunn, one son

Frank, and one niece, Elizabeth Minicelli, all in Edmond.

The funeral will be held Friday at 9:45 a.m. from the family residence to the Sacred Heart church, where requiem mass will be held at 10 a.m. Rev. Monsignor O'Gorman will officiate. Burial and interment will be made in the Edmond Roman Catholic cemetery.

Charles K. Kasper, an assistant professor of archaeology at the University of Arizona, tells of Navajo newlayweds who used canned goods for a ceremonial wedding dinner. Originally, she says, the Navajos ate a chafed or stator with vegetables and grains added in summer, but now they are using flour and tinned foods in quantities.

COMMUNISM, FASCISM HIT AT LABOR MEET

Each is Threat to Human Liberty and Peace, Motion Declares

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 25.—The American Federation of Labor today termed Communism, Fascism and Nazism "a definite threat to human liberty and to peace," and urged to fight the spread of these doctrines with all its might.

Drawing to a close after disposing of the John L. Lewis revolt issue, the Federation's 56th annual convention declared European dictatorships had wiped out the workingman's liberties and aimed by force "hand bloodshed" to subjugate "all those within the nation who may suffer."

"Under fascism, Nazism and Communism, political differences of opinion are held to be treason," the convention's resolutions asserted.

Galli-Curci Back But Critics Shake Heads

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Annette Galli-Curci returned to grand opera last night as Mimi in "La Boheme." With her the inebriated and bewitching voice, which has thrilled her to fame 20 years ago.

The opera's words and music and struggled shoulders. To the diminutive soprano, a star who tasted glory in her youth, was disappointing in her "second debut."

Sinclair Lewis' sentimental chronicle of a sentimental hero, "Dodsworth," which first captivated a vast audience as a best-selling novel and then as a stage play, has been made accessible to a still vaster audience as a film.

Reunited in the Samuel Goldwyn screen production, which commences today at the Capitol theatre for three days, are the two stars of the film, Sam Dodsworth, and Sidney Howard, who dramatized the Lewis novel. It is one more triumph of the screen play. The distinguished screen play, which again plays the proud old Barons von Overboard and Gregory Ogle, who was again as her young son, Kurt, who makes love to Dodsworth's romantic wife. This time, however, Ruth Chatterton plays Mrs. Dodsworth, while other prominent cast are Paul Lukas, Mary Astor and David Niven.

Howard came to this assignment a veteran in the art of screen writing. Four years ago he joined Hollywood's literary tribesmen and remained for some time, returning to the drama, he contributed "Alen Con," "Yellow Jack," "The Last of the Mohicans," "Puffs of Glory" and "Dodsworth." During this period, his personal film executives found him as personally unresponsive to their overtures.

RIALTO

One of the high points of the Republic production, "The Lady Loves Land," now on the screen at the Rialto theatre, is the Chinese feature, which suggested the rise used by Lew Ayres, who stars in the production, to run a load of guns out of the International Settlement of Shanghai.

According to Louis Vincent, the Chinese Technical director, this feature is different from the old style that was the custom before China became a Republic. In the old days a first class funeral had to have a full Chinese band playing the funeral dirge. Added mourners are always hired by those families that can afford them, and a procession of mourners may take hours and hours to pass a given point. To-day's funeral is a scene of wealth very much resembles an American naval or military funeral. Other automobile or horse drawn hearse are used.

At a Chinese funeral the degree of relationship may be easily ascertained by the clothes worn by the relatives.

Fairbanks Gets "Turk" Fixings Despite Strike

What To Do

The voice at the other end of a telephone is another human being, entitled to be treated with the same courtesy you would use in a face-to-face conversation. Because of the mechanics involved, a clear voice and a friendly manner are even more important over the telephone than in ordinary conversation. The recipient of a call should announce the name of the firm or person, as "Mr. Jones," "Miss Williams," "Mr. Jenkins speaking." In personal telephoning the one calling should always give his name as "This is Jack Black. May I speak to Mary Brown?" The initiator of the call is rightly considered the proper person to end the conversation. But where the originator is manifestly lacking in personal facilities, it is a good form for the one who has been called to make a polite excuse and say "good-bye."

Newspaper Selling Ordinance Quashed

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 25.—The court of appeals declared unconstitutional today a local ordinance prohibiting the hawking of newspapers in the village of Port Chester between the hours of nine p.m. and seven a.m. The court held the village had no power to restrict the sale of newspapers on the street.

The ordinance was passed after local newsmen claimed the sale of newspapers after nine p.m. might hurt the sales of morning papers the next day.

Pythons Turn On Dancer Doing Act

DANVILLE, Va., Nov. 25.—Miss Hazel Hall, a vaudeville performer had fully recovered today from an uncheduled incident on the stage last night when a seven-foot python circled her neck and almost choked her as she danced.

The python's constrictive power made her faint and the audience held its breath as she lay on the floor. She signalled frantically to the wings, down came the curtain and stage hands and other performers had a rough and tumble fight uncoiling the snake, used in the dancing act.

The word "sparrow," translated literally, means "thunderer" and authorities claim that the term applies only to the species "passer." Since the bird brought over from England is the only representative of that group, we have no true sparrows native to this country.

FINE SPECIMENS IN MUSEUMS

Thousands of Exhibits
Placed Under Care of
Dr. J. A. Allan, Curator

ROCKS that look like cloth, others that look like wool. Diamonds from South Africa, meteorites from Greenland; precious stones from Mexico and gold and silver and pitchblende from Great Bear Lake; Eskimo weapons, Indian beadwork; pottery from Etruscan ruins in Italy; images from ancient Egypt; the stone implements of the earliest stone age and firearms used by the early settlers of Alberta; fossilized remains of the "Gorgosaurus Libratus"; the fossilizing reptile which roamed through Alberta 80,000,000 years ago.

These are but a few of the many astounding specimens which are on exhibit at the Museums of Geology, Archaeology and Ethnology at the University of Alberta.

Dr. J. A. Allan, head of the department of geology at the University, is the curator of these museums, which lists among its exhibits, 1200 minerals, 2000 different types of rocks and rock formations, and nearly 2000 fossils.

"FINE" SPECIMENS
There are things in this museum which would leave even Ripley gasping, and over 200 of the fossils are what are known as "type" specimens, which means that they are considered the most perfect type known to be in existence and often, the only ones known to man. Some of the fine and valuable exhibits may be obtained from the fact that the collections are valued at between $10,000 and $100,000.

One of the handiwork here because of lack of space and equipment," said Dr. Allan. "It would take three times as many show cases as we now have to hold all the things that we have, and then we have no room."

One of the most interesting exhibits is a piece of flexible sandstone from South Africa. Although the slab is "honest to goodness" rock, it bends and it can be held in the other end will sag even in just about the same way as a piece of chewing gum.

WHAT'S THE REASON

"Just a minute—what's the catch here?" asked the reporter who he recovered from his first shock. "What's the reason for this?"

"Grains of sand in the stone are surrounded by muck, which holds them together, and yet allows for a certain amount of movement," explained Dr. Allan. "They get it in South Africa, too."

The reporter followed Dr. Allan down the long rows of glass topped cases in which the many specimens are exhibited. He saw Beaulieu from France, but are minerals from which aluminum is extracted.

AFRICAN DIAMONDS

In another case were two diamonds from South Africa. In another were minerals from which is obtained the rough with which "Betty Co-Ed" puts the bloom of youth on her cheeks. Besides these were topaz from Japan and turquoise from Mexico.

There is another one of the many cases, was some of the pitchblende from the same deposits from which Madame Curie got the ore from which she extracted radium. Further over was a sample of muscovite from Turkey, which is used in the manufacture of paper.

In another room there is an exhibit from the salt deposits of McMurray. The deposit there is 100 feet thick, and the University has a ten foot sample of the core taken out by Industrial Minerals Limited in their test well operations there.

From there the Professor led the reporter into the Paleontological museum. Here is the skin type of Chief Poundmaker, donated to the University by Mr. Justice E. A. McArthur, the package of moccasins worn by Chief Poundmaker and in a sealed container in 1885 by Frank Weismann of Winnipeg, and donated to the University by Jack Sherrin of Edmonton. They are believed to have been dropped

UNIVERSITY AT ROYAL FAIR

Alberta Institution Again Walks Off With Major Toronto Awards

By DEAN E. A. HOWES

ANOTHER year has rolled around and again comes from the Toronto Royal that the University of Alberta has made a showing that is outstanding in the market class. For some reason or other winnings in this class always seem to furnish one of the highlights of the great show. The assignment of market animals sent down by the University of Alberta this year has but carried out the tradition established by the first group we sent in the fall of 1919.

Often I am asked about how the University came to enter this field of competition and how we have been able to make such a showing down through the years. I have told the story of the early days so often that I can almost recite it now. Here it is:

Frank Collett of Crossfield, the late Simon Collett of Castar, Mr. Harris of the State of Missouri and Prof. Dowell, then head of our Animal Husbandry Department, together with others whose names I do not remember, were gathered together one evening in the parlors of the Hotel in Calgary in the early spring of 1919. Of course they were talking shop—beef cattle. The writer was not among those present, having retired at a respectable hour, and it is probable that Mr. Harris for the first time in his life was connected by these midnight enthusiasts.

CHALLENGE ISSUED

Mr. Harris had challenged the group of breeders to furnish the University with material for feed demonstration, claiming that "I would be good business for the province for the institution and for its breeders." The different breeders were to be invited through their respective associations to donate to the University, suitable stock to be reared and fitted and ultimately shown at the large fair, a demonstration of what our province was able to produce in a particular line, incidentally showing attendant students with the best possible classroom material. Later on the proposition was formally submitted to the different breed associations and in every case it met with warm approval.

During the first spring about five breeders offered calves and from these about a dozen of the best were selected. The writer accompanied Professor Dowell on his visit to meet these breeders. It would appear to be a rather delicate task to induce a man who had offered a calf that his animal was sound and good enough, but really there was nothing to be apprehended; the breeder who was sport enough to make the offer was sport enough to see to it that the animal was of the breed and of the quality.

The experience with the first group of calves is now a matter of history. At Chicago, Guelph, London, Calgary and Edmonton, they were always a source of interest and pride among Albertans, especially those who were interested in the production of good cattle. It was not out of place here to mention an experience of the lighter sort.

MEET HIS WATERLOO

Who, of those present the first year in Calgary will forget the handsome Richardson's steer which was a distinguished animal who had been elected to lead this high and mighty group of animals? But, however, met his Waterloo in Edmonton when he tried to make good his reputation. He did not promote. Later on, in the spring this group of steers was shipped to the old country, faced the gauntlet of the notorious Chicago, and in the end went to satisfy the appetites of sundry presumably appreciative Scotmen.

While Professor Dowell was very much in charge of the first group it was the privilege of the writer to make a tour of the province and meet such breeders as the Professor was unable to call upon, to select calves for a second demonstration. Again a large number of breeders offered calves and again we were able to select a group of more or less of the best. As the years passed on we have more and more exhibited animals bred at the University, if they were good enough to show. However, we have several bred on the farms of students. So much for the story—what is the big idea?

Mr. Harris crystallized the object under three heads—benefits to the province, to the University and to the breeders. Two of these claims we must consider briefly. As a concrete example of demonstration to outsiders of what Alberta can produce in high class beef animals, the scheme must prove attractive.

I was a matter of off experienced under, among the stock men, that could achieve such high results under climate with our feeds. Be it remembered that the chief value in these prizes was, even if we could not win, but in the psychological

Effect of a fine group of animals representing the three breeds, as well as grade and crossbreds, and all good and the whole shown as an Alberta product.

FRACTION OF COST

I would like to submit to all organizations or individuals who are sincerely striving to advance Alberta in a manner to achieve permanent benefit, this concrete demonstration of the possibilities of beef production of the highest order under our climatic conditions, and the very small kind of advertising, and the labor lies in the fact that it costs but a fraction of what a campaign of common literature would cost. I once showed our Chamber of Commerce a page copy scheme by the University of Alberta. This was syndicated to 623 weekly papers on the continent and the page was taken up with Western Canada winners and a very large part of these were from Alberta.

As to the advantage to the breeders, it is better to leave the verdict to those who contributed.

GREAT BENEFIT

The benefit to the University, directly and indirectly, is enormous. From this plan, would be indeed hard to measure, but it is only right that we should attempt to give some expression of appreciation of an experience that has meant so much to us. In the first place this co-operation effort is a good cause has established for us, in a way nothing else could, a close working relationship with the breeders of the province. It is a matter of common remark of those from outside our province, who visit us from time to time, that the stockmen of Alberta take an unusually deep interest in the work being done at the University. We are proud of this. When all is said the greatest benefit we derive from the scheme is from the splendid laboratory material it renders available to our students. Presumably we are training future leaders in agriculture and in a province such as Alberta, these leaders should know the livestock game. Granted this, the next evident thing is that a great deal depends upon the quality these students carry away with them, and of paramount importance in this field are the mental pictures made and retained, as to ideal livestock types.

These students will be raising stock of their own or guiding others in the way of raising and fitting it. It is not to be expected that they will always achieve the ideal, but they will always grow animals as they study here—but it gives them a fine goal to fight toward. Therefore the best is none too good, and as much of the best as is attainable.

BUYING CATTLE

ERSKINE, Nov. 25.—R. W. Berry, of Guelph, government agent, was in Erskine last week buying cattle at one cent per pound to be shipped under the government policy. Twenty-six old cows and other cattle were purchased, one carload.

FUNERAL HELD

TROCHU, Nov. 25.—Funeral of Isabella Warwick, 23, wife of Judge Howard Warwick, who died Thursday, was held Saturday in St. Paul's United Church. Rev. H. J. Young officiating. A large gathering of friends, overlooking the church and churchyard, attended.

UNIVERSITY'S THIRTY YEARS OF PROGRESS

In 1908 Dr. Tiery resigned to accept a position with the National Research Council of Canada, and he was succeeded by Dr. Robert Charles Wallace, formerly professor of geology at the University of Manitoba.

Other changes had taken place too. Mr. Justice Stuart, first chancellor of the university had died in 1936 after having completed 18 years of office, and had been succeeded by the late Mr. Justice Kerr in 1927. Dr. A. C. Rutherford, first premier of Alberta and one of those responsible for the founding of the university, was elected chancellor, and he occupies that position still.

In 1931 Mount Royal College in Calgary was affiliated as a junior college.

In 1933 the Carnegie Corporation of New York donated a sum of $10,000 to the extension department to be used for the purpose of encouraging drama and cultivating an appreciation of music and art throughout the rural districts of the province.

At the end of the year 1935, the Corporation decided to continue the grant for another two-year period. Besides this grant the Corporation donated a sum of $15,000 to be used for the purchase of books for the library, and another sum of $50,000 for the financing of research in all the departments of the university.
